Taft-Stassen Duel To Dominate Tuesday Poll

Pickaway Vote May Be Light

Balloting Start
Set For 6:30 A.M.

The Taft-Stassen fight for Republican presidential delegates and the Miller-Lausche battle for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination highlight Tuesday's Ohio primary election.

Pickaway County's voting will begin at 6:30 a. m. Tuesday when voters from city corporations and the 15 townships will trek to the 54 precinct polls to nominate their party choices for the November general election.

In the 12-hour period ending at 6:30 p. m., the county will select its nominees for 10 posts in the local government.

Although Pickaway County party chairmen are not predicting a heavy turnout of voters, both Carl Leist and Tom Renick, chairmen of the county Democratic and Republican parties respectively foresee a better-than-average number of votes cast in Tuesday's primaries.

HEAVY VOTING is not expected throughout the county, both leaders declared, unless the rainy weather continues over Tuesday which would permit farmers to be absent from their fields.

County board of election officials are taking no chances on a probable light vote. They ordered 16,000 ballots for Tuesday—nearly three times as many as the previous record primary turnout.

At a meeting Saturday night, board officials passed out voting supplies to the presiding judges for all county precinct polls.

Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota is contesting with Ohio's own Sen. Robert A. Taft for 23 of the state's 53 GOP delegates to the Philadelphia national convention June 21. The other 30 delegates go to Taft uncontested.

A big and mystic figure "10" seems to hang over the presidential brawl. Sifting all rumor, claim and counter-claim, it appears to boil down to this:

If Stassen elects 10 or more delegates—including the one candidate he has entered for one of the nine at-large posts—the balloting may be taken as a Stassen victory.

If Taft holds the 41-year-old former naval captain to nine or less, the senator's forces will have held their line.

Both sides claim victory in the optimistic way of politicians.

TAFT PREDICTED in Cleveland that he would win "virtual."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

It has been ruled by a Missouri court that when a man is at the wheel of his car and his wife is pushing she is the driver; that gives her one more driving position.

Up until now she had to be at the wheel or in the back seat. Now she can drive with one shoulder to the rear bumper.

But it's carrying gasoline conservation too far when a woman has to get out and push while her husband steers—or he has a well-trained wife.

Anyway there is good news from the medical profession that the mint julep is an aid to the heart. That's regardless of what it does to the head.

Few Strikers Back On Jobs In Meat Houses

CHICAGO, May 3—Few striking packhouse workers returned to work today in Chicago meatpacking plants although threatened with the loss of their jobs if they stayed away.

Only a handful of men went into the plants early through reinforced picket lines of peaceful marchers. The response of the strikers to a back-to-work movement of the major packers was considered a showdown test in the 49-day-old walkout.

Armour, Swift and Wilson warned strikers that they might be replaced if they failed to report for work in their Chicago plants this morning. They said returning workers would receive a nine-cent hourly wage increase.

President Ralph Helstein of the striking CIO-United Packing house workers denied the union members would return to their jobs, despite the industry's threat of replacement and the pay boost offer.

Vets Rally Is Set Up For May 13

VA Specialists To Detail Benefits

James P. Shea, Pickaway County veterans service officer, announced plans Monday for a countywide Veterans Rally to be held May 13 in Circleville high School auditorium at 8 p. m.

The rally will be for all veterans of the armed forces and any of their relatives or friends interested in veterans benefits, including employers interested in on the job training problems under the GI Bill of Rights.

The program is being developed by Shea and Evert C. Strickland, manager in charge of the Columbus office of the Veterans Administration.

A group of VA officials, each a specialist in his field, will be present to discuss and explain the various benefits administered by the VA.

THEY WILL cover such subjects as pensions, compensations; hospitalization, medical and dental care, on the job and on the farm training, GI loans, and government life insurance.

Many veterans who have recorded their discharges at the Pickaway County recorder's office will each receive a letter regarding the meeting. However, all veterans are urged to attend whether they receive a letter or not.

"If a man's discharge is not recorded, we do not have his address," Shea explained.

The VA and the county service officer are arranging the rally with the cooperation of the Circleville posts of the American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Shea declared that "all too many veterans are not aware of the many benefits which are theirs as the result of war service." He said the specialists from the VA would detail every phase of the program.

Burglars Enter Third Pickaway School In Week

Pickaway County's "school-house bandits" Saturday night increased their loot by $100 when they broke open a safe in Superintendent Judson Lannan's office in the Williamsport school and rifled desks in search of additional cash.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said Monday he would throw his full deputy force into an investigation as he pointed to two school-house burglaries last week in Ashville and Pickaway Township schools.

The county officer emphasized this was not the work of juveniles as he warned other schools about leaving cash in office caches. Sheriff Radcliff said school officials "had better take special precautions as until this matter is cleared up."

The burglars apparently used a skeleton key to enter the front door of the school then knocked out a square glass to unlock Lannan's office door, Radcliff stated.

Radcliff stated the combination had been knocked off the safe and a bar was used to jimmy the mechanism to get the safe door open.

House Panel OKs Peacetime Call Of Men 19 Through 25

WASHINGTON, May 3—The House armed services committee today approved by a vote of 28-to-five a two-year peacetime draft for men aged 19 through 25.

The committee ended weeks of hearings by reporting for House consideration, probably next week, the nation's second peacetime draft legislation. Rep. Andrews, (R) N. Y., sponsored the measure.

At the same time, the administration dropped the drive for immediate action on Universal Military Training and urged swift passage of the Andrews draft bill.

Secretary of Defense James Forrester told the committee that he was "working for the best legislation that seems to have a practical opportunity of being enacted at this session."

Favorable action was taken after the committee rejected a motion to postpone final action until the Senate armed services committee completes consideration of its combined Draft-UMT measure.

THE COMMITTEE was spurred on in its favorable vote by warnings from Forrester that the world faces a serious situation which make it "imperative for the country to have this" draft legislation.

During questioning, Forrester dropped a hint that the United States may be considering military lend-lease to France, Great Britain, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Forrester declined to say that the draft bill was the maximum legislation that the administration would ask of Congress.

A resurvey of the nation's manpower pool indicates that Congress will have to draw upon veterans with 18 months or less service to fill requirements of the regular armed forces and the organized reserves.

Chairman Gurney, (R) S. D., disclosed that, because of the manpower shortage, the administration has returned to its original draft age of 19 through 25 for the two-year hitch in the armed forces.

The manpower study disclosed that broadening the age base for two-year draftees by the extra six months would add 360,000 potential inductees.

Sandusky Truck Driver County's 9th Crash Victim

A 36-year-old Sandusky truck driver was Pickaway County's ninth traffic fatality of 1948 when he lost control of his tractor-trailer assembly at 10:30 a. m. Monday and crashed into a tree on Route 762, four miles east of Harrisburg.

The dead man was identified as Roy E. Brandel.

State Highway Patrolman L. G. Ridenour said the truck, which was owned by the Gilbert Myer Co., of Castalia, caught fire immediately. Brandel's body was reported thrown from the cab by the impact and escaped the flames.

The accident report said the driver lost control of his vehicle on a curve and plowed head-on into a tree. The trailer assembly was completely demolished and the cab destroyed by fire.

Brandel's body was removed to the Holt funeral home in Commercial Point to await completion of funeral arrangements.

Comic Books Tongue-Lashed By Irate Cleric

COVINGTON, Ky., May 3—The Rev. Jesse L. Murrell took a verbal wallop Sunday morning from his pulpit in Covington's First Methodist church, at what he called "the poisonous growth of comic books in the last decade."

Opening National Family Week at his church, Rev. Mr. Murrell said the books were "badly drawn, badly written and badly printed," and "unless we want a coming generation of ferociousness, parents and teachers must band together and get rid of the comic magazine."

He said:

"Seventy percent of the so-called comic books are of a nature that no newspaper would publish. The bulk of these lurid publications depend for their appeal upon mayhem, murder, torture and abduction."

"Superhuman heroics, voluptuous females in scanty attire, blazing machineguns, hooded 'justice' and cheap political propaganda are found on almost every page. The oldtime dime novels were classic literature compared to this drivel. Their hypodermic injection of sex and murder makes the child impatient with better, although quieter stories."

Pickaway Vote May Be Light

ly all" of the 23 contested seats, although he admitted that the one Stassen candidate for delegate-at-large, Carrington T. Marshall of Columbus, presented a "gamble."

That is because names rotate on the ballot, and by "single-shotting" Marshall—voting for him and no other—the Stassen forces can almost certainly elect him.

Stassen, for his part, claimed that he would capture a "majority" of the 23 contested seats. His 22 district candidates are entered in 11 more-or-less industrialized congressional districts where Taft, because of his espousal of the Taft-Hartley labor control law, may be relatively unpopular.

The Taft forces are banking on party organization along old-time political lines. The Stassen followers are relying on the personal appeal of their younger candidate.

On the Democratic side, that party also will elect presidential delegates, 50 of them, but here there is no contest. All are pledged to William A. Julian of Cincinnati, now Treasurer of the United States, as the state's favorite son. His entry is a cover for President Truman, who at the time of filing had not made known his intention to seek a new term.

Officials at the secretary of state's office are predicting a total vote of about 1,200,000—650,000 Republicans and 550,000 Democrats. That's a far greater number than the 895,000 who cast primary ballots in 1944, the last presidential year.

IF THE EXPECTED total is reached, it may mean victory for Former Gov. Frank J. Lausche in the Democratic gubernatorial race. Lausche, who has always decried party bossism, has made his bid for the support of the independent voter whose ballot would be needed to swell the vote to the anticipated total.

On the other hand, if the vote turnout is small, Former Cleveland Mayor Ray T. Miller, banking on party organization support and the support of labor, might be the winner. It is an old axiom of politics that organization controls a small primary vote.

The rest of the candidates on the state ballot are perilously close to being forgotten men. Except for the professional politicians, there are probably few citizens who could even tell who the candidates are.

All the incumbent state officials appear certain of re-nomination. Republican Governor Herbert has only minor opposition in his bid for re-nomination from Albert A. Payne, Springfield manufacturer and William L. White, Newark inventor.

Contests on both the Republican and Democrat ballots will be found in the race for nomination for Congress.

The incumbent, Walter Brehm, is being opposed on the GOP ticket by Ralph Terrell. On the Democrat ticket, Rex Ed Haacker is pitted against Joseph Allen.

In Pickaway County, contests are limited to the county commission and the sheriff's office. Four men from each party seek two nominations for commissioner while Charles Radcliff, present sheriff, is being challenged on the Democrat ticket by Ralph Wallace.

Legion To Aid Disaster Units

Pickaway County American Legion posts are soon to be contacted in conjunction with the reactivation of "disaster relief units", which were formed during the past war by the Legion in conjunction with the program set up by the Ohio state highway patrol.

Ed Ebert, adjutant of the Circleville legion post, said 11 members of the auxiliary set up during the war were still active in the county, but that a new force will be recruited when the state patrol readies its program.

The new unit to be formed is to assist in such peacetime disasters as floods, fires, tornadoes or explosions.

Training will be given the new recruits on rescue, first aid, evacuation, identification, transportation and the other necessary emergency measures.

Husband Given Divorce Here

A marriage which began Aug. 22, 1934, in Russell, Ky., has been dissolved by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court. He granted a divorce to Robert G. Goodchild on grounds of gross neglect.

Two minor children suffered separation of their parents and were placed in the custody of the mother, Pauline E. Goodchild.

In a property settlement recognized by the court, the defendant was awarded possession of all household furniture while Goodchild agreed to pay $25 per month rent for the house until the children come of age.

He in turn was awarded release from paying for her support and alimony although Goodchild will pay $20 per week as support for his two children.

Street Fighting Costs Men Fines

Four Circleville men, ranging in ages from 18 to 23 years old, each received fines of $10 and costs in mayor's court Saturday for fighting on West Main street about 2:30 a. m. Saturday.

Those fines were Don Haddox, 18, Robert Phillips, 20, Joe Bailey, 19 and Clarence Tomlinson.

Haddox and Tomlinson were committed to the county jail by Mayor Thurman I. Miller in default of payment.

tion against the back-to-work movement at the companies' plants. Police reacted to the reports by ordering nearly 1,000 officers to be on the scene.

Helstein announced last night at the end of an all-day session with local leaders that the national strike strategy committee had found the walkout "completely effective throughout the nation."

Meanwhile, the nation's meat supply was threatened further by an additional walkout which would tie up all livestock movements into and out of Chicago's giant union stockyards.

President Ralph Monaghan of the stockhandlers union said possible strike action against the union stockyards and transit company will be considered at a meeting tomorrow.

Monaghan said the company had offered the union a "totally inadequate" wage increase of three and a half cents an hour pay boost.

Lad, 3, Hurt In Tumble

Donald Conrad, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gay Conrad of 315 Watt street was given emergency treatment for a laceration over his right eye Sunday in Berger hospital.

His mother said the lad fell against a chair or door. The lad was released from the hospital following treatment.

Permits Granted

Marriage licenses were issued Saturday in Pickaway County probate court to Robert E. Holbein, 22, of Columbus, a laborer, and Mary Jean Hoover of Commercial Point; and to Joseph G. Kelly, 23, of New Holland, a farmer, and Florence K. Armentrout of New Holland.

Angler Fined

When arraigned before Magistrate H. O. Eveland for failing to exhibit a fishing license, Oscar Van Person of Lancaster pleaded guilty and was fined $15 and costs. Van Person was arrested by Clarence Francis, a game warden.

DEATHS and Funerals

RAMEAL COFFENBERGER

Funeral services for Rameal Coffenberger, 46, of Kingston Route 2, who died from injuries received when he fell from his seat on his tractor into the path of the drag he was operating on his farm Friday evening, were to have been held at 2 p. m. Monday in the Colerain EUB church, with burial in the Hallsville cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, Dorothy May Smith; a son, John Isaac; three daughters, Joyce, Helen and Mary Louise, all at home. Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Mazie Evans of Kingston Route 2, Mrs. Grace Andrews of Cincinnati and Mrs. Gladys Boden of Kinnikinnick.

Body Of Local War Hero Due Back In City

The body of Cpl. Paul M. Styers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry and Stella M. Shaffer Styers of 213 Town street, will arrive in Circleville on the Norfolk and Western Railway at noon Wednesday and will be taken to the Defenbaugh funeral home preparatory to funeral services arranged for Friday.

Cpl. Styers attended Circleville elementary and high school until he enlisted in the army at Fort Hays in Columbus Nov. 7, 1939.

Following basic training, Cpl. Styers was stationed at Fort Cobb in the Panama Canal Zone, where he died from wounds received in the line of duty.

He was a member of Trinity Lutheran church.

Surviving him, in addition to his parents, are six brothers; Kenneth and Robert of Columbus, Harry of South Pickaway street, and Lawrence, Warren and Donald at home; and three sisters, Mrs. Paul Monison of Columbus, Mrs. Lee Smith of South Washington street and Betty at home.

Funeral services are to be held at the Defenbaugh funeral home at 2 p. m. Friday with the Rev. George Troutman officiating. Military services will be held at Forest cemetery, by Circleville Veterans of Foreign Wars. Pallbearers will be members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Friends may register at the Defenbaugh funeral home Wednesday.

At least three persons were reported injured in an area four to five miles wide and 10 miles long north of Urbana.

At least 15 houses in the district were reported flattened by the terrific winds and the damage was expected to run to more than $100,000.

Ernest Wilkins, 15, had his leg crushed when the top of his father's barn blew off and pinned him beneath the falling timbers; Richard Shipley, 14, and James Moorman, 24, of Springfield received cuts and bruises about the head and body when they were struck by flying sticks and stones and building materials.

The storm uprooted trees, stalled transportation, tore down wires, flooded basements, flooded the streets and caved in several sewers in Columbus.

Elsewhere in the state, the Greenville area in Darke County appeared to have taken the worst beating. Authorities there estimated the damage at about $300,000.

Barns were unroofed, trees were downed and the Ohio Telephone Service Co. reported communications cut off to New Madison, Versailles, Rossburg and Ansonia.

One of the famous McGuffey elms on the Ohio university campus at Athens was blown down and five private planes were damaged at the university airport. Telephone service was knocked out northwest of Athens.

Dogs Poisoned

sons, including a 6-year-old girl were killed.

In Granite City, Ill., a man was electrocuted by a fallen power line.

In Lake of the Ozarks, Mo., three persons were drowned during a tornado.

Transportation and communication facilities were temporarily disrupted when tornadoes uprooted trees and snapped telephone poles.

The storms lashed Oklahoma and Kansas late Saturday night. Early yesterday, Missouri, Illinois and Ohio were hit by tornadoes. Late last night tornado winds struck Alpha, Ky., and Quiet Dell, Mt. Clare, and West Milford, W. Va., all near Clarksburg.

A SEVERE windstorm, described by Indiana state police as a small tornado, struck two counties in Indiana, near Muncie.

Storms lashed Columbus, injuring six persons.

Several persons were injured by flying glass in St. Louis when a 70 mile per hour wind broke store windows.

National Guard troops were called out in Alpha to patrol the disaster area. Rescue workers were digging in the ruins of several homes seeking missing persons.

Knutson Claims Congress To OK Trade Extension

WASHINGTON, May 3 — Rep. Knutson, (R) Minn., predicted today that Congress will approve a temporary, one-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act "with safeguards."

Knutson made his prediction as a House ways and means subcommittee prepared to open hearings behind closed doors on continuation of the New Deal law.

The subcommittee is headed by Rep. Gearhart, (R) Calif., who has set a May 15 goal for House enactment. The 1934 act expires June 12.

Knutson said that the following "safeguards" may be written into the act:

1. A provision requiring ratification by Congress of new tariff agreements negotiated by the State department.

2. A floor on tariff reductions.

Sentiment also is reported for barring the President from reducing tariffs any further. Three years ago, when the act last was extended, Republicans made a strong fight to eliminate a provision authorizing the President to make an additional 50 percent cut in tariff rates. The Democratic-controlled House rejected the GOP attempt by a slim 23-vote margin.

With both houses now controlled by the Republicans, there are ample votes, if the GOP leadership desires, to write such a ban into the act.

$26,469 Sought In Action After Fall On Ice

A $26,469.63 damage suit for injuries and shock has been lodged in Pickaway County common pleas court by Vangie Campbell of 122½ South Court street for alleged negligence on the part of Columbia Lodge No. 32 and Pickaway Encampment No. 11 of the Order of Odd Fellows.

Her petition states the lodge was at fault for not keeping the sidewalk clear of ice on the southeast corner of Court and Main streets which caused her to fall and fracture her right leg and cause shock.

The action for damages claims the lodge "carelessly and negligently" permitted a defective cornice, gutter and downspout on the Odd Fellows Hall to let water flow onto the sidewalk and freeze last Jan. 7.

Mrs. Campbell is asking $25,000 for damages and $1,469.63 for surgical expenses.

Named as defendants for Columbia Lodge were Trustees C. E. Copeland, Luther Bowser and Emmett Morgan. Trustee defendants for the Pickaway Encampment are Loring Martin, Howard Ett and Frank Clendenen.

ly all" of the 23 contested seats, although he admitted that the one Stassen candidate for delegate-at-large, Carrington T. Marshall of Columbus, presented a "gamble."

That is because names rotate on the ballot, and by "single-shotting" Marshall—voting for him and no other—the Stassen forces can almost certainly elect him.

Stassen, for his part, claimed that he would capture a "majority" of the 23 contested seats. His 22 district candidates are entered in 11 more-or-less industrialized congressional districts where Taft, because of his espousal of the Taft-Hartley labor control law, may be relatively unpopular.

The Taft forces are banking on party organization along old-time political lines. The Stassen followers are relying on the personal appeal of their younger candidate.

On the Democratic side, that party also will elect presidential delegates, 50 of them, but here there is no contest. All are pledged to William A. Julian of Cincinnati, now Treasurer of the United States, as the state's favorite son. His entry is a cover for President Truman, who at the time of filing had not made known his intention to seek a new term.

Officials at the secretary of state's office are predicting a total vote of about 1,200,000—650,000 Republicans and 550,000 Democrats. That's a far greater number than the 895,000 who cast primary ballots in 1944, the last presidential year.

IF THE EXPECTED total is reached, it may mean victory for Former Gov. Frank J. Lausche in the Democratic gubernatorial race. Lausche, who has always decried party bossism, has made his bid for the support of the independent voter whose ballot would be needed to swell the vote to the anticipated total.

On the other hand, if the vote turnout is small, Former Cleveland Mayor Ray T. Miller, banking on party organization support and the support of labor, might be the winner. It is an old axiom of politics that organization controls a small primary vote.

The rest of the candidates on the state ballot are perilously close to being forgotten men. Except for the professional politicians, there are probably few citizens who could even tell who the candidates are.

All the incumbent state officials appear certain of re-election. Republican Governor Herbert has only minor opposition in his bid for renomination from Albert A. Payne, Springfield manufacturer, and William L. White, Newark inventor.

Contests on both the Republican and Democrat ballots will be found in the race for nomination for Congress.

The incumbent, Walter Brehm, is being opposed on the GOP ticket by Ralph Terrell. On the Democrat ticket, Rex Ed Haacker is pitted against Joseph Allen.

In Pickaway County, contests are limited to the county commission and the sheriff's office. Four men from each party seek two nominations for commissioner while Charles Radcliff, present sheriff, is being challenged on the Democrat ticket by Ralph Wallace.

The new British move—the sending of additional troops to Palestine—is bound to influence today's meetings.

Supporters of partition may be expected to take a dim view of the British action. It is generally believed that recent Jewish military successes have made the establishment of the Jewish state a "fait accompli", and that further British intervention may undo the Zionist progress.

About a thousand British troops in full battle-dress landed at Haifa and "infantry, tanks, artillery, and commandos" are being sent from the Mediterranean island bases of Cyprus and Malta.

AN OFFICIAL British announcement attributed the reinforcement of the Holy Land garrison to a "seriously deteriorated situation" caused by "unwarranted aggression on the part of Irgun Zvai Leumi."

The Jewish Agency immediately protested the move. The Jews charged that Britain intends to maintain a military occupation of the Holy Land when the mandate ends under the guise of maintaining stable authority.

They asserted that the British intend to keep the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion—units of which are now operating in Palestine under British command—in the country, ostensibly under British control, but actually operating under the orders of King Abdullah.

Ike To Receive 'Basic Training' At Columbia

NEW YORK, May 3—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower begins basic training today for his new job.

The five-star general of the Army, who arrived in New York yesterday to assume the presidency of Columbia university on June 7, has a month of "briefing" ahead of him.

During that month, "Ike" will learn the ropes of his new civilian position, which will make him the administrator of one of the world's greatest institutions of education.

The man who led American troops to victory in Europe will also spend the time working on his memoirs.

An informal gathering of 200 persons — mainly neighbors, newsmen, and photographers — were on hand to greet the general and his wife Mamie when they arrived yesterday afternoon from Fort Myer, Va.

THE EISENHOWERS have taken up residence in the four-story red brick building at 60 Morningside Drive, the traditional home of Columbia presidents.

Earlier in the day, "Ike" took his official leave of the U. S. Army, in simple but impressive ceremonies at Fort Myer.

An honor guard came to "present arms," and the man who endeared himself to millions of GIs, responded with what may have been the last salute of his 37-year Army career.

The general will be inducted into the presidency—of Columbia—on the Monday after commencement exercises on the Morningside campus.

Urbana Hit By Big Wind Late Sunday

sons, including a 6-year-old girl were killed.

In Granite City, Ill., a man was electrocuted by a fallen power line.

In Lake of the Ozarks, Mo., three persons were drowned during a tornado.

Transportation and communication facilities were temporarily disrupted when tornadoes uprooted trees and snapped telephone poles.

The storms lashed Oklahoma and Kansas late Saturday night. Early yesterday, Missouri, Illinois and Ohio were hit by tornadoes. Late last night tornado winds struck Alpha, Ky., and Quiet Dell, Mt. Clare, and West Milford, W. Va., all near Clarksburg.

A SEVERE windstorm, described by Indiana state police as a small tornado, struck two counties in Indiana, near Muncie.

Storms lashed Columbus, injuring six persons.

Several persons were injured by flying glass in St. Louis when a 70 mile per hour wind broke store windows.

National Guard troops were called out in Alpha to patrol the disaster area. Rescue workers were digging in the ruins of several homes seeking missing persons.

At least three persons were reported injured in an area four to five miles wide and 10 miles long north of Urbana.

At least 15 houses in the district were reported flattened by the terrific winds and the damage was expected to run to more than $100,000.

Ernest Wilkins, 15, had his leg crushed when the top of his father's barn blew off and pinned him beneath the falling timbers; Richard Shipley, 14, and James Moorman, 24, of Springfield received cuts and bruises about the head and body when they were struck by flying sticks and stones and building materials.

$26,469 Sought In Action After Fall On Ice

A $26,469.63 damage suit for injuries and shock has been lodged in Pickaway County common pleas court by Vangie Campbell of 122 1/2 South Court street for alleged negligence on the part of Columbia Lodge No. 32 and Pickaway Encampment No. 11 of the Order of Odd Fellows.

Her petition states the lodge was at fault for not keeping the sidewalk clear of ice on the southeast corner of Court and Main-streets which caused her to fall and fracture her right leg and cause shock.

The action for damages claims the lodge "carelessly and negligently" permitted a defective cornice, gutter and downspout on the Odd Fellows Hall to let water flow onto the sidewalk and freeze last Jan. 7.

Mrs. Campbell is asking $25,000 for damages and $1,469.63 for surgical expenses.

Named as defendants for Columbia Lodge were Trustees C. E. Copeland, Luther Bower and Emmett Morgan. Trustee defendants for the Pickaway Encampment are Loring Martin, Howard Eit and Frank Clendenen.

Knutson Claims Congress To OK Trade Extension

WASHINGTON, May 3 — Rep. Knutson, (R) Minn., predicted today that Congress will approve a temporary, one-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act "with safeguards."

Knutson made his prediction as a House ways and means subcommittee prepared to open hearings behind closed doors on continuation of the New Deal law.

The subcommittee is headed by Rep. Gearhart, (R) Calif., who has set a May 15 goal for House enactment. The 1934 act expires June 12.

Knutson said that the following "safeguards" may be written into the act:

1. A provision requiring ratification by Congress of new tariff agreements negotiated by the State department.
2. A floor on tariff reductions.

Sentiment also is reported for barring the President from reducing tariffs any further. Three years ago, when the act last was extended, Republicans made a strong fight to eliminate a provision authorizing the President to make an additional 50 percent cut in tariff rates. The Democratic-controlled House rejected the GOP attempt by a slim 23-vote margin.

With both houses now controlled by the Republicans, there are ample votes, if the GOP leadership desires, to write such a ban into the act.

manpower situation is tighter than many persons believe, indicating a shortage of some 114,000 potentials exclusive of veterans.

INFORMED sources said that one million 669 thousand men will be needed in Fiscal 1949 to supply the needs of both the regular armed forces and the organized reserves. Against this need, there are available only one million 555 thousand youths 18 through 25 years of age who are physically fit, non-deferrable and non-veterans.

Attrition through discharges resulting from completion of enlistments, it was emphasized, will require 554,000 replacements. In addition, the armed forces will need 349,000 new two-year men and 161,000 trainees to reach the proposed authorized strength.

The National Guard and organized reserves in turn will need 605,000 men to fill vacancies and add to their strength.

Military experts noted that there is a pool of 450,000 World War II veterans who served 18 months or less, and it is from this source that they hope to make up the difference.

Ohio Farms Part Of Big U.S. Jigsaw

Experts Predict Top Wheat Yield

COLUMBUS, May 3—Each of Ohio's 250,000 farms is a tiny bit of a national rural jigsaw puzzle made up of 6,000,000 pieces which have to be fitted together by anyone who tries to foresee future harvests and future farm income. Rural economists get reports from all farming areas and, at stated periods, predict probable future harvests for the principal farm crops.

These economists at Ohio State university foresee a total 1948 wheat harvest for the U. S. of 1,132,000,000 bushels and that prediction is made before the Spring wheat crop has been sown.

Growers of winter wheat in the nation report their crop came through the winter better than average except in the southwestern dry farming section.

Lack of fall moisture and severe winter weather in the southern Great Plains wheat country has caused abandonment of a lot of the winter wheat planted there in 1947. The favorable condition of winter wheat planted in other parts of the country offsets the high percentage of abandoned wheat in the southwest so the average abandoned acreage for the U. S. is 12.6 acres out of each 100 planted, which is less than the long-time average.

ANOTHER FACTOR in the wheat farmer's probable future income was the presence on U. S. farms April 1, of 256,500,000 bushels of wheat grown in 1947 or previous years. That is the portion of the 1947 record wheat crop which had not moved off farms in a marketing period which sent enormous amounts of wheat and flour to foreign countries.

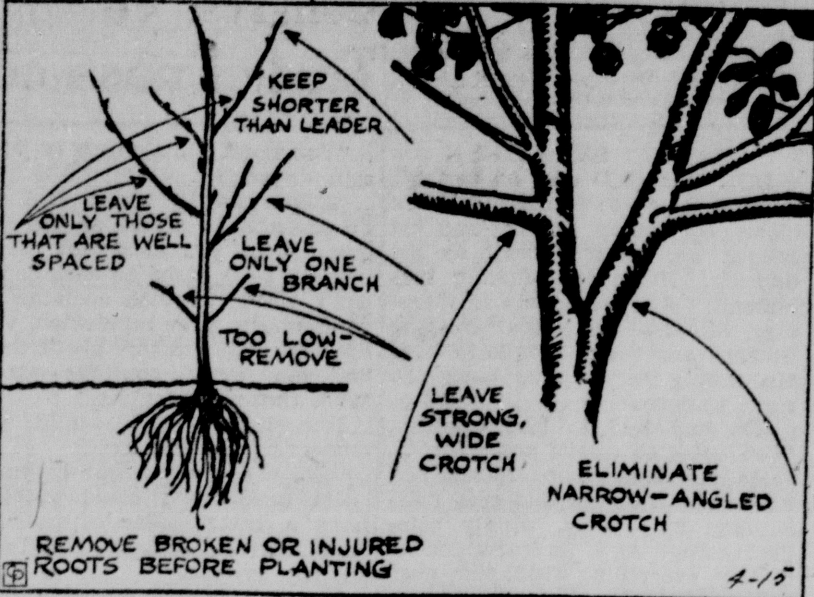

However, the total amount of wheat sent to market from U. S. farms in the first three months of 1948 was the second largest amount on record for those same months in any year.

Wheat farmers not only watch the wheat situation but keep track of other crops. The rural economists say pasture conditions in the U. S. April 1, were better than average. Conditions for spring plantings were good on April 1, and there was plenty of water in sight for irrigation except in Arizona, Nevada, and California.

The city of Elgin, Ill., was settled in 1835, chartered as a city in 1854, and adopted the commission form of government in 1912.

Proper Pruning of Fruit Trees

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Distributed by Central Press Association

IF YOU PLAN to plant young fruit trees in your Freedom garden this spring be prepared to prune them properly.

If you already have trees which are approaching the fruit-producing stage be prepared to prune them to keep them healthy and structurally strong.

In the handling operations preparatory to setting out young fruit trees, some of the roots may be broken or otherwise damaged. These should, of course, be removed before the tree is set.

After planting, some of the top of the young tree should be removed to compensate for the loss of roots, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This is a very important step and should not be done in a haphazard manner.

Avoid leaving short, stubby branches which will later cause a poorly shaped tree. Remove weak or crowded branches cutting them close to the trunk. Attempt to space the branches which are saved three to six inches apart along the trunk, selecting only those which have a strong wide-angled crotch, as illustrated.

It may be necessary to cut off all except three or four side branches. This will not cause any serious setback and is necessary for the development of a well-shaped and long-lived tree.

After planting a young fruit tree, it is customary to shorten the leader slightly although this depends to some extent upon the shape and size of the tree. In general it is best to keep the framework of a fruit tree low for then it is easier to spray it and later on to pick the fruit. If a tree is being grown only for ornamental purposes the leader is usually left uncut, unless it is out of all proportion to the rest of the tree.

A-Panel Squabble Brings Surprises To Top Solons

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WASHINGTON, May 3—The proposal, late last week, by Iowa's Republican Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper that David E. Lilienthal and other members of the Atomic Energy Commission be reappointed for two-year terms came as something of a surprise to many Capitol Hill observers.

And it did considerably more than that. It provided a new tribute to the staunch stubbornness of Senator Robert A. Taft, and it served strong notice that the Lilienthal case may well become a "cause celebre" of the coming election campaign.

It came as a surprise to some because Hickenlooper, chairman of the joint congressional atomic energy committee, originally had not intended to tamper with the recommendations of President Truman—but rather to serve as mediator when the appointments came up before his committee.

The President's recommendations included a five-year term for Lilienthal as AEC chairman; Sumner Pike, four years; Lewis L. Strauss, three years; W. W. Waymack, two years, and Robert F. Bacher, one year.

HIS APPOINTMENTS had hardly been announced when Taft stated that he would oppose Lilienthal's reappointment for a five-year term. Although the Ohio senator was more or less head of the Senate opposition to Lilienthal a year ago, he insisted last week that he was raising no question "about the fitness" of the AEC chief.

He simply said he didn't like the idea of "saddling" a possible new national administration with long-term appointments.

At first, however, Hickenlooper stood pat. It has long been known that the Iowa takes a deep and serious pride in his job as head of the congressional atomic group.

Further, when the anti-Lilienthal pack was in full cry at the hearings a year ago, it was Hickenlooper who risked the wrath of the Republican leadership by interceding for Lilienthal—several times telling him that, if he felt it unwise for security reasons, he did not need to answer senators' questions.

That is exceptional conduct on the part of a congressional committee chairman.

IN ADDITION to all that, Hickenlooper has been touchy on any situation which hinted of attempts to inject political considerations into the Atomic Energy Commission. Even Taft made no effort to deny that his opposition to the five-year term was at least partially inspired by political considerations.

Taft's stubbornness, even on a stand which unquestionably puts him in a bad light during election year, is in many ways perhaps not so unexpected.

He is known as a strong-willed man. Nevertheless, there was (and is) a great deal of mounting Republican pressure to get the Ohioan to stay off the Lilienthal issue—particularly at the present time when he literally is fighting for survival of his candidacy.

That the whole business will become a hot campaign issue has become perfectly clear. Harold Stassen already has interjected it into the Republican primary fights, and President Truman and Democratic leaders have left little doubt that they will accuse the Republicans of playing politics with the atom bomb.

Certainly, if this keeps up, John Q. Voter is going to suspect that somebody is doing exactly that.

STAMP FOR THE WRIGHTS

HOW IS it that no commemorative stamp has been issued to celebrate the first successful flight, made by the Wright brothers at Kittyhawk, N. C., on Dec. 17, 1903? Almost every other important event, and a few not so important, seems to have received this distinction. Perhaps the Post Office Department is waiting for a good round anniversary, like the 50th. Even so, some stamp enthusiasts do not want to wait so long, and some clubs have petitioned the Department to get out one to commemorate the 45th anniversary.

Certainly there have been few dates in world history of such importance. Incidentally also it might be a lesson to such provincially minded people as the Wright brothers' uncle, who tried to discourage their efforts with this piece of wisdom: "Well, boys, I am willing to admit that some day somebody will invent a machine that will enable him to fly, but depend upon it, when it does happen, the inventor won't be anyone from Dayton, Ohio."

WITHOUT PAIN

WHO HAS not sometime wished that his body might be insensitive to pain? The experience of deep or prolonged pain often brings the thought: How wonderful the world would be if there were no pain!

Doctors at Akron, O., discovered that a girl born there a year ago will live in a world without pain, for a defect in her nervous system has blocked out her ability to sense it.

As a result she must be kept under constant watch, until she learns to maintain the vigil herself, lest her body be damaged without her knowledge. The peculiar condition was discovered when she ignored the bruises of babyhood's falls. Disease might strike her down suddenly, for she can not feel the pain which often warns of the approach of illness.

Pain, whether of the body or the mind, has its useful place.

The publication in book form of the Goebbels diaries renews the wonder that a civilized country ever let vermin like Goebbels, Hitler, Goering and the rest get supreme control. Their possession of force does not explain it. Our racketeers have force, and sometimes are more powerful than we like, but they have never come within a million miles of seizing the United States or of degrading its people as the Germans were degraded.

Finding out whether China has made any gain at all under Chiang Kai-Shek is as hard as it would be to get agreement on how the United States had thrived under FDR. Yet whether China has gained is one thing that Americans ought to know before they decide whether to extend more aid to the Chinese government.

Inside WASHINGTON

Capital Dopesters See Deadlock Might Enhance House Speaker's Chances

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—As one group of Washington political dopesters figure it, House Speaker Joseph Martin will emerge as the Republican presidential nominee in the Philadelphia scramble next June.

They add it up this way: Harold E. Stassen, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, will deadlock the convention in the early balloting. This will cause Taft and Dewey to seek a compromise candidate to stop Stassen.

Top dark horse prospects are Martin, Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gov. Earl Warren of California. Of this group, Martin is considered the most likely choice. A faithful party wheelhorse, he is regarded as acceptable to GOP leaders.

A move is already afoot to stampede the convention for Vandenberg if a deadlock should develop. But the veteran Michigan senator has antagonized a lot of Republican insiders by the bi-partisan foreign policy which he has pursued. Party leaders will seek a candidate whom they regard as more desirable.

They want to avoid both Stassen and Vandenberg. That is why Martin is moving more into the spotlight as the possible choice.

● TAFT-HARTLEY LOOPHOLE—The vast building and construction industry with its two million workers may be removed from coverage of the Taft-Hartley labor act.

That is the interpretation labor leaders are placing on a recent federal district court decision in Denver holding that local building projects are not covered by the Taft-Hartley act controls.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The public used to judge a man on his record. By record was meant his public acts, his achievements, his accomplishments, with a background of his private life to indicate character. His speeches were secondary to character. And while consistency may be little better than stubbornness, inconsistency often is the mark of a baffled mind, a confused personality, an over-anxiety to achieve position without too great regard for principle.

Since 1932, those guides to the selection of public officials have not been as popular as heretofore. The word, glamour, has in many minds become more popular than the record of accomplishment. Glamour has replaced character. Perhaps that is why the gossip columnists have attained to such an importance in journalism; they glamorize the trivial and pander to a lust for egalitarianism, that is, leveling our society at the lowest possible level without absolutely outraging moral opinion to which they give not obeisance but a passing nod.

Senator Robert A. Taft is to be judged by his leadership of the Republican Party in Congress. He has made himself responsible for a labor bill, a health bill, an education bill, a housing bill. He has opposed UMT; he has supported tax reduction without imperiling the national defense. His leadership has required him to take a positive stand on every public measure; in Congress, both parties have come to respect him as possessing intellectual integrity and legislative capacity.

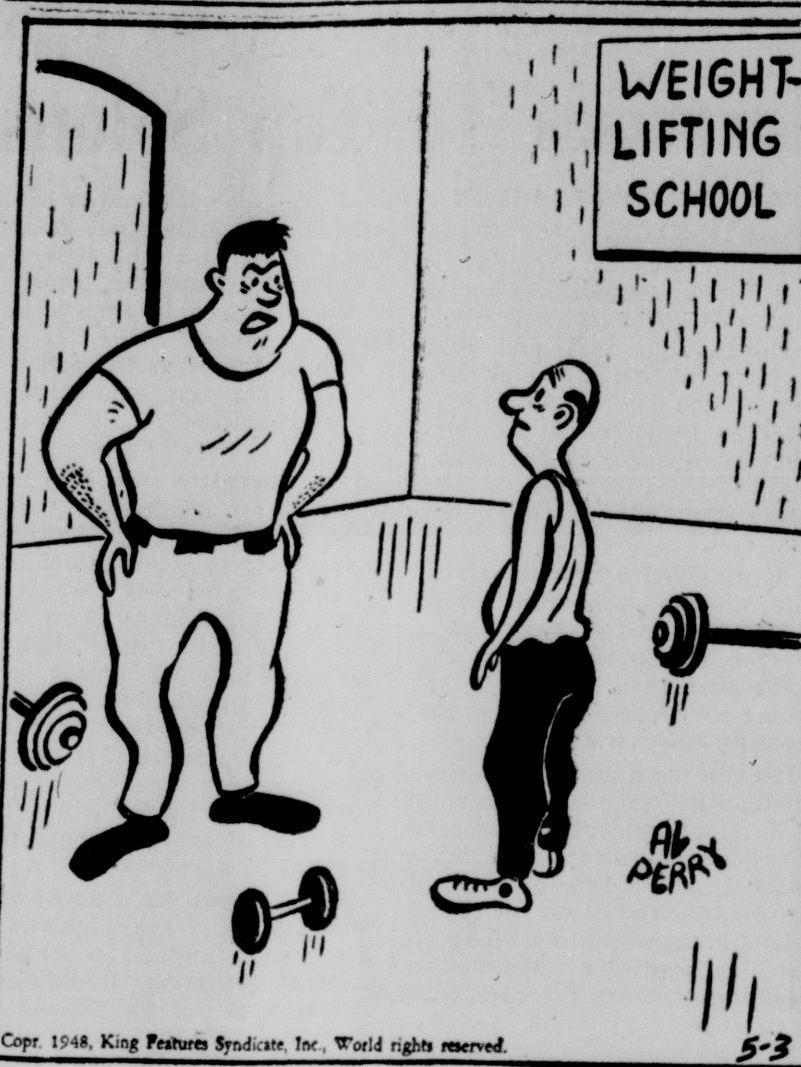

That he lacks glamour is admitted even by his staunchest supporters. He could not compete in that sphere with Van Johnson or Clark Gable. He is not an actor nor a robot, repeating platitudes composed by other minds. He does not shake hands as though that were his most important accomplishment. He does not wear an eternal smirk. If these are requirements for the presidency, Bob Taft is wanting. Lana Turner probably would fill all these requirements, if no others.

My first impression of Harold Stassen was way back when he proposed limited sovereignty for the United States. It was an immature idea, highly emotional, projected without regard to the dangers facing this country from its principal enemy, Soviet Russia, that had been its enemy since 1917 with no interludes. True, others made the same error, but no matter what has happened since 1917, I, as one citizen, can never respect the mentality that produced so sophomoric a conception of history. Those who will not do the home work necessary to make themselves familiar with public problems, or who sacrifice the public good for their private ambitions, ought to be opposed.

While Taft was standing up in the Senate for public principle, Stassen declined to come to the Senate but devoted himself to the sole task of running for the presidency. He assumed no public responsibility, except at the San Francisco Conference where he was outshone by Arthur Vandenberg and John Foster Dulles, who assumed aggressive leadership on behalf of his party. For nearly three years he has had no occupation except running for the presidency; no calling except the making of speeches.

He may have a very attractive personality and even a beautiful smile—but there is no record of achievement in national affairs.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BALANCED TRUMPS BEST

FOR AN assortment of reasons, it is desirable to have eight trumps divided evenly between your own hand and the dummy and to have eight cards of some other suit on the side if they consist of five opposite three. The most important factor is that the unbalanced side suit affords a chance to discard losers of the other two suits, which would be impossible if that suit were on the side. This situation, with evenly divided trumps, also lends itself better to a cross-ruff if that possibility is presented or to "reverse dummy" play whereby you treat the dummy as the master hand and use your own for ruffing.

Almost as unobscured a choice, but with a better motive back of it, was North's choice at one table of 6-No Trumps, feeling that if twelve tricks could be taken at either contract this score would beat the major. But of course only eleven tricks were taken, as a squeeze proved impossible for the twelfth trick.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

In a big duplicate the early bidding went exactly as shown, most pairs selecting 6-Hearts after the Blackwooding was done. That contract was made, following the diamond K lead, by simple play. The A won the first trick, the heart A, K and Q cleared trumps, the spade A, K, fanned 10, Q and 6 brought two club discards from dummy, the club A was won, a diamond was lost to the Q, and the last two tricks were the cross-ruff of a club in dummy and a diamond in closed hand.

Note that the key to that success was the ability to get two discards on the side-suit spades. Such an operation was impossible where North decided to select 6-Spades for the final contract by his partner. In that contract it was impossible to discard any minor suit losers on the balanced heart suit. So the declarer had to lose a trick apiece in diamonds and clubs.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

DON DANCED with an assured but indifferent ease, holding Helen close. He danced silently and his silence was as indifferent as his dancing. Helen was finding him difficult. And strangely disturbing. She had suggested dancing because she couldn't talk to him. He simply never gave back the right answers.

She had said to him brightly, "I've come to rescue you."

He had straightened up and had looked down at her, his eyes half-smiling, half-sleepy, wholly comprehending. As if he knew, immediately, everything about her, even things that she herself, did not know. It had been a shock.

"Do I look as if I need rescuing?"

"Well, at least you look lonely."

He merely shrugged.

"Or are you one of those bitter philosophers who says, 'Aren't we all?' and lets it go at that?" she had gone on.

"I wouldn't call myself a philosopher."

She tipped her head and regarded him with coy curiosity. "No? What, then? You're something interesting, I know."

He shrugged again. "A derelict, maybe, if you must have a label."

"Fascinating!"

Again he said nothing. He simply stood there, looking down at her and tapping a cigarette against his thumb nail. Somehow it made her uncomfortable, that look. Her last remark, echoing in her ears, sounded insane. She wished Anne had told her at least a little bit about this man. What did he mean by a derelict? Amoral? Unmoral? Or merely without purpose? She sensed a ruthlessness in him born of his indifference. He could be cruel if occasion demanded, she thought. He could be destructive and never mind what he destroyed. Her heart beat a trifle faster in an odd excited kind of fright. It was then she had suggested that they dance.

She said now, breaking the silence, "Where did you ever meet Anne?"

"Why?"

"Because you seem such a strange person for her to know."

"Anne—if you haven't discovered it—has extraordinarily broad sympathies."

She put her head back and looked up at him and spoke in a swift and unexpected anger. "Don't you ever answer questions?"

"Sometimes."

"Because you haven't answered any of mine. You just give back with another question. Is it only a bad habit? Or are you afraid of being caught some time?"

"Caught?" he repeated. "Oh, I'm sorry! Well, let's see. I think it must be habit because I'm not at all afraid of being caught." He paused thoughtfully. "No, I'm not afraid of that—or anything else."

"You don't think much of yourself, do you?"

"That's exactly right. If I did, I'd probably be afraid, as you suggest. Fear, you know—or maybe you don't—is based on caring. You don't want to lose something—your money, your reputation, your life—because you care about them. So you grow cautious—afraid. Well, that's out for me."

Her glance flicked over his scar and up to meet his look.

"Did the war do that to you?"

He nodded. "I could probably have a better piece of patching done but it amuses me to be slightly revolting."

She felt herself growing tight inside. She couldn't remember ever being so inept with words. She said, "I didn't mean that at all. Anyway, it's not revolting."

"Thank you kindly. What did you mean?"

"I meant, did the war make you uncaring?"

"Perhaps so. I really don't know."

That seemed to end that. He put a period to everything she started. Well, let him start something, then.

But he didn't. He simply danced and the silence grew insufferable so that she finally looked up at him again. His eyes, tired, cynical, held a laugh in their depths.

"It didn't work, did it?"

"What does work?" she asked, exasperation in her tone.

He lifted a shoulder. "Does it matter? Or do you seriously want to make an impression? If so, be reassured. You already have."

She waited, trying to anticipate nothing. He went on. "You strike me as a very discontented woman."

She drew a quick breath. "Are you trying to make me hate you?"

"Meaning it would be easy? Well, does it make you hate me more to have me say I find naked emotion extremely interesting? Or doesn't it?"

She made no answer. She felt a little like the mouse a cat plays with. As helpless, as tortured, as hopeful of final escape. It didn't make sense. Escape from what? Suddenly he laughed and his arm drew her closer. "It's John, isn't it? You and he are not—sympathetic?"

She felt his body hard against hers. She heard the rumbling of his voice and the beat of his heart under her ear. Not for years—never really—had she been conscious of a man this way. Through the unaccustomed tumult within her she groped for a preserving indignation.

"What has Anne been telling you?"

"I haven't seen Anne since she moved here. And tonight I have only spoken a greeting to her. But customarily that's the answer, I believe. It didn't take any great astuteness on my part. What I want to know now is, what are you going to do about it?"

"About what?"

"John. Your life. Me." Before she could recover herself to reply the music had ended and he released her. She stepped away and looked up at him through the spinning of her senses. What she should do, of course, was to administer some completely annihilating rebuke. But it would have no effect on him. And she was powerless, anyway.

He said, giving her a mocking little bow, "Take your time. Nothing has to be settled tonight. In fact, nothing has to be settled at all." He shrugged his shoulders again with that heavy indifference of his. "But don't imagine you're a cold woman, my dear. You've simply never been awakened."

Anne was saying eagerly, "Have you met John yet?"

Don shook his head. A moment ago Helen had left him somewhat abruptly and as he stood there wondering with why detachment why in the devil he had bothered to start anything with her, Anne, excusing herself from Frank Tennant, had joined him. It was his insatiable curiosity about people, his mind went on. He was always trying to find out what made them tick. Well, Helen was too easy. Already he was bored by her. Anne's voice called him back to her.

"Then let's go find him."

He demurred. "Later. After all, I came to see you, too. Chiefly to see you," he corrected himself. And he held out his arms as the music started.

They danced without talking. Anne didn't mind his silence as Helen had. It was just good to be with him again. To know that he was her friend and, unless she wished otherwise, that that was what he would remain. The fact seemed to give a stability to a world that had lately grown unstable. For a while, here at Stone House, she had felt so confident! So certain that all she had to do was wait for Alec. It had seemed entirely right. But recently doubts had assailed her, and now with John's saying that he and Helen were going to New York as soon as Alec arrived, the whole solid structure of her planning seemed to be rocking. Yet that was silly, of course. After all, her life would be with Alec. And certainly John would not give over the reins to him here if he hadn't full confidence in him. It was just that John was so much the whole of Stone House that it was difficult to imagine the place without him, and the thought of his going away made her—well—uneasy. As if, somehow, she might be connected with it—responsible for it. But that was silly, too. It was Helen. No one else. Helen.

DIET AND HEALTH

Symptoms Signaling Trouble

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DIARRHEA, either in intermittent attacks or continued over a long period of time, and accompanied by soreness of the abdomen, gas, pains, and cramps usually means one of two things, inflammation of the bowel or an irritable colon.

The latter is far more common than the former and, while its treatment requires less in the way of medicines, it demands a great deal more in the way of tact, reassurance, and common sense, for these people are usually greatly worried about themselves. They are afraid they may have cancer or some actual bowel inflammation. It is part of the physician's job to impress his patients with the fact that there is no real organic disease present, and that they are not suffering from colitis or bowel inflammation.

Disease Not Present

Of course, this can only be done after the physician has assured himself that actual inflammation or disease is not present. He will rule these out only after careful examination, including X-rays of the bowel and the use of the proctoscope, an instrument which allows him to look directly at the tissues of the lower part of the intestine.

Undoubtedly, the most important underlying factor in this condition is worry and fear of one type or another. It is the emotional strain, not physical disorder, which brings on the disturbance of the bowel in some cases.

In some cases, it is thought that to perhaps sensitivity to a food, or allergy, may be a contributing cause.

It has been noted in certain cases that other symptoms of the irritable bowel appear following such conditions as amebic dysentery, a dysentery due to germs, and so-called intestinal flu. Following an attack of one of these conditions, the patient may have persistent spells of diarrhea, together with some discomfort in the abdomen. In these cases, no particular treatment is required, and the symptoms gradually disappear.

One of the most important things in the treatment of the irritable bowel is reassurance, and the elimination of worry as far as possible.

As to dietary treatment, bulky foods and highly seasoned foods should not be eaten. It has been suggested, also, that it is important to avoid the taking of excessive amounts of fluids. Mild sedatives or quieting drugs, such as phenobarbital, will be prescribed by the physician when he thinks it is necessary. Certain drugs, such as belladonna, which seems to relax the intestine, may be of slight benefit in some cases.

Washing out the lower bowel is of no value and, in fact, may only tend to make the disturbance worse. The use of laxatives and enemas may also lead to further difficulty.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Reader: When in bed, if I try to turn my left side I get dizzy. What would you suggest?

Answer: There are many causes of dizziness, among which are constipation, high blood pressure, heart, and kidney trouble. Constipation is one of the most frequent causes of dizziness.

It would be advisable for you to have a thorough physical examination by a physician to determine whether or not any of these conditions are present. The blood pressure should be taken and the urine examined. The proper treatment can then be suggested.

It was an immature idea, highly emotional, projected without regard to the dangers facing this country from its principal enemy, Soviet Russia, that had been its enemy since 1917 with no interludes. True, others made the same error, but no matter what has happened since 1917, I, as one citizen, can never respect the mentality that produced so sophomoric a conception of history. Those who will not do the home work necessary to make themselves familiar with public problems, or who sacrifice the public good for their private ambitions, ought to be opposed.

While Taft was standing up in the Senate for public principle, Stassen declined to come to the Senate but devoted himself to the sole task of running for the presidency. He assumed no public responsibility, except at the San Francisco Conference where he was outshone by Arthur Vandenberg and John Foster Dulles, who assumed aggressive leadership on behalf of his party. For nearly three years he has had no occupation except running for the presidency; no calling except the making of speeches.

He may have a very attractive personality and even a beautiful smile—but there is no record of achievement in national affairs.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BALANCED TRUMPS BEST FOR AN assortment of reasons, it is desirable to have eight trumps divided evenly between your own hand and the dummy and to have eight cards of some other suit on the side if they consist of five opposite three. The most important factor is that the unbalanced side suit affords a chance to discard losers of the other two suits, which would be impossible if that suit were trumps and the evenly-split suit were on the side. This situation, with evenly divided trumps, also lends itself better to a cross-ruff if that possibility is presented or to "reverse dummy" play whereby you treat the dummy as the master hand and use your own for ruffing.

Almost as unsound a choice, but with a better motive back of it, was North's choice at one table of 6-No Trumps, feeling that if twelve tricks could be taken at either contract this score would beat the major. But of course only eleven tricks were taken, as a squeeze proved impossible for the twelfth trick.

What bidding would you prefer, for both sides, on this tournament deal?

In a big duplicate the early bidding went exactly as shown, most pairs selecting 6-Hearts after the Blackwooding was done. That contract was made, following the diamond K lead, by simple play. The A won the first trick, the heart A, K and Q cleared trumps,

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

DON DANCED with an assured but indifferent ease, holding Helen close. He danced silently and his silence was as indifferent as his dancing. Helen was finding him difficult. And strangely disturbing. She had suggested dancing because she couldn't talk to him. He simply never gave back the right answers.

She had said to him brightly, "I've come to rescue you."

He had straightened up and had looked down at her, his eyes half-smiling, half-sleepy, wholly comprehending. As if he knew, immediately, everything about her, even things that she, herself, did not know. It had been a shock.

"Do I look as if I need rescuing?"

"Well, at least you look lonely."

He merely shrugged.

"Or are you one of those bitter philosophers who says, 'Aren't we all?' and lets it go at that?" she had gone on.

"I wouldn't call myself a philosopher."

She tipped her head and regarded him with curiosity. "No? What then? You're something interesting, I know."

He shrugged again. "A derelict, maybe, if you must have a label."

"Fascinating!"

Again he said nothing. He simply stood there, looking down at her and tapping a cigarette against his thumb nail. Somehow it made her uncomfortable, that look. Her last remark, echoing in her ears, sounded insane. She wished Anne had told her at least a little bit about this man. What did he mean by a derelict? Amoral? Unmoral? Or merely without purpose? She sensed a ruthlessness in him born of his indifference. He could be cruel if occasion demanded, she thought. He could be destructive and never mind what he destroyed. Her heart beat a trifle faster in an odd excited kind of fright. It was then she had suggested that they dance.

She said now, breaking the silence, "Where did you ever meet Anne?"

"Why?"

"Because you seem such a strange person for her to know."

"Anne—if you haven't discovered it—has extraordinarily broad sympathies."

She put her head back and looked up at him and spoke in a swift and unexpected anger. "Don't you ever answer questions?"

"Sometimes."

"Because you haven't answered any of mine. You just give back with another question. Is it only a bad habit? Or are you afraid of being caught some time?"

"Caught?" he repeated. "Oh, I'm sorry! Well, let's see. I think it must be habit because I'm not at all afraid of being caught." He paused thoughtfully. "No, I'm not afraid of that—or anything else."

"You don't think much of yourself, do you?"

"That's exactly right. If I did, I'd probably be afraid, as you suggest. Fear, you know—or maybe you don't—is based on caring. You don't want to lose something—your money, your reputation, your life—because you care about them. So you grow cautious—afraid. Well, that's out for me."

Her glance flicked over his scar and up to meet his look.

"Did the war do that to you?"

He nodded. "I could probably have a better piece of patching done but it amuses me to be slightly revolting."

She felt herself growing tired inside. She couldn't remember ever being so inept with words. She said, "I didn't mean that at all. Anyway, it's not revolting."

"Thank you kindly. What did you mean?"

"I meant, did the war make you uncaring?"

"Perhaps so. I really don't know."

That seemed to end that. He put a period to everything she started. Well, let him start something, then.

But he didn't. He simply danced and the silence grew insufferable so that she finally looked up at him again. His eyes, tired, cynical, held a laugh in their depths.

"It didn't work, did it?"

"What does work?" she asked, exasperation in her tone.

He lifted a shoulder. "Does it matter? Or do you seriously want to make an impression? If so, be reassured. You already have."

She waited, trying to anticipate nothing. He went on. "You strike me as a very discontented woman."

She drew a quick breath. "Are you trying to make me hate you?"

"Meaning it would be easy? Well, does it make you hate me more to have me say I find naked emotion extremely interesting? Or doesn't it?"

She made no answer. She felt a little like the mouse a cat plays with. As helpless, as tortured, as hopeful of final escape. It didn't make sense. Escape from what? Suddenly he laughed and his arm drew her closer. "It's John, isn't it? You and he are not—simpatico?"

She felt his body hard against hers. She heard the rumbling of his voice and the beat of his heart under her ear. Not for years—not ever really—had she been conscious of a man this way. Through the unaccustomed tumult within her she groped for a preserving indignation.

"What has Anne been telling you?"

"I haven't seen Anne since she moved here. And tonight I have only spoken a greeting to her. But customarily that's the answer, I believe. It didn't take any great astuteness on my part. What I

DIET AND HEALTH

Symptoms Signaling Trouble

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DIARRHEA, either in intermittent attacks or continued over a long period of time, and accompanied by soreness of the abdomen, gas pains, and cramps usually means one of two things, inflammation of the bowel or an irritable colon.

The latter is far more common than the former and, while its treatment requires less in the way of medicines, it demands a great deal more in the way of tact, reassurance, and common sense, for these people are usually greatly worried about themselves. They are afraid they may have cancer or some actual bowel inflammation. It is part of the physician's job to impress his patients with the fact that there is no real organic disease present, and that they are not suffering from colitis or bowel inflammation.

Disease Not Present

Of course, this can only be done after the physician has assured himself that actual inflammation or disease is not present. He will rule these out only after careful examination, including X-rays of the bowel and the use of the proctoscope, an instrument which allows him to look directly at the tissues of the lower part of the intestine.

Undoubtedly, the most important underlying factor in this condition is worry and fear of one type or another. It is the emotional strain, not physical disorder, which brings on the disturbance of the bowel action.

In some cases, it is thought that perhaps sensitivity to a food, or allergy, may be a contributing cause.

It has been noted in certain cases that other symptoms of the irritable bowel appear following such conditions as amebic dysentery, a dysentery due to germs, and so-called intestinal flu. Following an attack of one of these conditions, the patient may have persistent spells of diarrhea, together with some discomfort in the abdomen. In these cases, no particular treatment is required, and the symptoms gradually disappear.

One of the most important things in the treatment of the irritable bowel is reassurance, and the elimination of worry as far as possible.

As to dietary treatment, bulky foods and highly seasoned foods should not be eaten. It has been suggested, also, that it is important to avoid the taking of excessive amounts of fluids. Mild sedatives or quieting drugs, such as phenobarbital, will be prescribed by the physician when he thinks it is necessary. Certain drugs, such as belladonna, which seems to relax the intestine, may be of slight benefit in some cases.

Washing out the lower bowel is of no value and, in fact, may only tend to make the disturbance worse. The use of laxatives and enemas may also lead to further difficulty.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Reader: When in bed, if I try to turn my left side I get dizzy. What would you suggest?

Answer: There are many causes of dizziness, among which are constipation, high blood pressure, heart, and kidney trouble. Constipation is one of the most frequent causes of dizziness.

It would be advisable for you to have a thorough physical examination by a physician to determine whether or not any of these conditions are present. The blood pressures should be taken and the urine examined. The proper treatment such conditions as amebic dysentery can then be suggested.

Capital Dopesters See Martin Top Dark Horse

Deadlock Might Enhance House Speaker's Chances

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—As one group of Washington political dopesters figure it, House Speaker Joseph Martin will emerge as the Republican presidential nominee in the Philadelphia scramble next June.

They add it up this way: Harold E. Stassen, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, will deadlock the convention in the early balloting. This will cause Taft and Dewey to seek a compromise candidate to stop Stassen.

Top dark horse prospects are Martin, Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gov. Earle Warren of California. Of this group, Martin is considered the most likely choice. A faithful party wheelhorse, he is regarded as acceptable to GOP leaders.

A move is already afoot to stampede the convention for Vandenberg if a deadlock should develop. But the veteran Michigan senator has antagonized a lot of Republican insiders by the bi-partisan foreign policy which he has pursued. Party leaders will seek a candidate whom they regard as more desirable.

They want to avoid both Stassen and Vandenberg. That is why Martin is moving more into the spotlight as the possible choice.

TAFT-HARTLEY LOOPHOLE—The vast building and construction industry with its two million workers may be removed from coverage of the Taft-Hartley labor act.

That is the interpretation labor leaders are placing on a recent federal district court decision in Denver holding that local building projects are not covered by the Taft-Hartley act controls.

If the decision is sustained by the higher courts, the entire industry may be granted immunity from the act.

Officials of the AFL Building Trades union have always contended that their industry was intra-state and therefore not subject to the Taft-Hartley act.

In the Denver decision, Federal Judge J. Foster Symes ruled that even though a Denver company bought some materials from outside the state, no question of interstate commerce was involved.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R), Ohio, co-author of the act, said he doubted that Congress intended the act to apply to the construction trades.

NEW AIRFIELD LOOK—The Air Force has decided to apply the "new look" to air bases in reverse. It is getting tired of making runways longer and longer to accommodate bigger and bigger airplanes.

New devices have given inspiration to the idea that planes can be made to land within the limits of present field facilities, thus ending the hopeless business of adding more and more concrete to runways.

The latest device is a new type of landing gear that will enable large as well as small planes to land on shorter runs. The gear consists of special wheels which will reduce taxiing distances and minimize ground-loop accidents.

The longest runways in use now were built to accommodate the new long-range B-36 bombers. At Mile 26 in Alaska the runways are more than 15,000 feet long. They are less than a year old.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S MANICURE—Stories about the Roosevelts still bob up around Washington three years after the death of FDR.

The latest to come to light is that Mrs. Roosevelt had her nails manicured at an obscure, second floor, walk-up beauty shop not far from the White House. She patronized an exclusive downtown store at first, but stopped going there when the shop started using her patronage as a drawing card for trade.

At the obscure shop, Mrs. Roosevelt brought letters and read them while the manicurist worked. She always used uncolored nail polish. When the manicurist asked whether she didn't want to change to color occasionally, she explained that colored blots would get in her way when she was writing her daily syndicated column.

Observance Of Mother's Day To Open Week's Social Activities

Many Societies Book Celebrations

Quiet activities in general were quiet during the weekend, while most of the events scheduled for the next few days center around the observance of Mother's Day, which will be celebrated Sunday.

Many organizations will entertain at banquets honoring mothers and daughters during the week and homecomings for family celebrations are already being planned.

Two banquets are planned for Monday evening. One is the annual Von Bora society of Trinity Lutheran church to take place at 6:30 p. m. in the parish house. The society has invited the Rev. Carl Oberdorfer, missionary to India, to address its social affair.

Members of Mrs. Marion's Sunday school class of First Methodist church will hold their annual Mother's Day banquet in the social rooms of the church at 6:30 p. m. Mrs. Dwight Steele is general chairman of the affair.

Another event to take place Monday evening is the annual social session of Monday Club. This group plans festivities in the parish house of St. Philip's Episcopal church at 8 p. m. They will hear an address by Mrs. Ayse Sertel, student at Ohio State university, entitled "Women in Turkey And Turkish Homelife".

All women of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church and their guests will be honored by the Trailmakers' Class at a Mother's Day tea at 7:30 p. m. Monday in the social rooms of the church.

Wednesday evening, members of the Westminster Bible class of the Presbyterian church will have a covered-dish supper in the social rooms of the church. Festivities for the members and their guests begin at 6:30 p. m. Friday evening, the Dorcas Pathfinder class of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church will host to the girls of the Youth Fellowship at a mother and daughter banquet in the church. Part of the program will be furnished by the girls.

The annual mother and daughter banquet of First Evangelical United Brethren church will be held in the community house at 6:30 p. m. Friday.

Sunday evening, Luther Leaguers of Trinity Lutheran church will honor their parents at a co-operative dinner and special program.

Sigma Phi Gamma sorority members plan to sponsor a Mother's Day tea Sunday in Pickaway Country Club.

George Miller Is Honored

George Miller of East Mill street was honored by his wife at a surprise party Saturday evening in celebration of his birthday anniversary.

During the evening Miss Marjorie Allen entertained the guests by playing a piano solo.

The hostess was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. Merle H. Thomas to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Loring Allen and children, Beverly, Paul, Miss Rea Ann Allen, Miss Marjorie Allen, Linda Lou and David Thomas, Mrs. Ada Miller and son, Donald, Danny Leets and the honored guest.

MIAMISBURG KNOWS NOW

Ohio Town Gets Insight On Workings Of A-Bomb

MIAMISBURG, May 3 — This little town, settled in 1799 but not incorporated until 1930, today knows more about atomic energy than any other community in the land.

Its simplest schoolgirl could explain plutonium to a worker at the Hanford, Wash., plutonium plant.

Its humblest shopkeeper could tell the people of Oak Ridge, Tenn.—where uranium in gaseous form is shot through huge tunnels that are magnetized in such a manner that Uranium-235 atoms are separated from Uranium-238 atoms—just how this happens and why it must.

Its crudest farmhand could tell the United Nations—forever wrangling over the threat of the A-bomb—just how much more of a future the atom has as a medical and industrial tool.

Why is this true of Miamisburg?

Last year the Monsanto Chemical Co. began erecting in the town the first of two mysterious plants and laboratories for further research into the incredible story of the atom and its long-locked secrets.

SECURITY came to Miamisburg—not the security of money in the bank, but security in the form of special police, government guards, the FBI and a series of restrictions handed down by the Atomic Energy Commission.

When the government closed Miamisburg's historic pride, its Indian burial mound, because it commanded a view of the new atomic plants, the people became both resentful and terrified. The unknown became a town spectre.

The Atomic Energy Commission decided to experiment with the people of Miamisburg: To let them in on the sense of what was happening around them; familiarize them with the rights and duties of "Living With Atomic Energy"—as the local slogan goes.

It wasn't easy. Centuries of in-scrutable atomic research, and the enormous strides made in the last 10 years, had to be simplified.

The people have been told, primarily, of the greatest atomic energy plant to man—the sun.

They know now that the word "atom" is from the Greek and means "an uncuttable thing," and that the ancients thought there are units in all physical matter that are so small they cannot lend themselves to being cut in half; have reached the sub-microscopic stage of indivisibility.

THEY KNOW now why some substances, notably radium and uranium, are radioactive — because they are undergoing the same sort of unhappy domestic friction that certain brands of mothers-in-law create in otherwise happy families, and thus give off what amounts to sparks and can be broken easily.

They know that the forces which hold together the core of the atom—the nucleus around which rotates, in planetary fashion, a varied series of bodies called electrons—are so great that a piano wire made entirely of atomic nuclei would be strong enough to lift all the battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers and destroyers in the world, without snapping.

Thus they can understand the enormous force unleashed when a nucleus is broken in two by an invisible particle—a neutron—that hits them at great speeds.

And they know why the A-bomb works, in effect, for they know about chain reaction, which is simply the sudden release of a softly glowing power given off by Uranium-235.

There remains some hope that what the people of Miamisburg know—and what has been related here is only part of it—will spread to the people of the United States and perhaps the people of the world. This might have an enormous effect on the fearful outlook of mankind on atomic energy.

UNDER ARREST, accused of living as man and wife four and a half years, are Vida Lorene Danner (left), and Cora Devine, both 39, at Fresno, Cal. Vida, posing as wife, "Mrs. Carl Devine," worked as a tavern waitress. Cora, posing as husband, "Carl Devine," worked as a restaurant cook. Charge, vagrancy. (International Soundphoto)

Anderson Due For Ohio Talk

COLUMBUS, May 3—U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson is to address the annual banquet of the Columbus Friends of the Land this evening.

Anderson will arrive by plane from his home near Albuquerque, N. Mex., to take part in the ceremonies scheduled in conjunction with National Friends of the Land Week.

U.S. Policy Said Modern Crusade

CLEVELAND, May 3—United States policy means training men to kill or be killed and is a crusade without boundaries in which we mortgage our lives and our riches.

That is the view of Cecil

Brown, noted war correspondent and radio commentator. Brown told a Jewish congregation at the Temple on the Heights yesterday in Cleveland that the United States program may produce a breathing spell, but that it offers no staying off of war.

He said our policy now is "how and where to stop Russia," and hers is "how to take advantage of Democratic America."

Police Confer On Capture Of Murder Suspect

COLUMBUS, May 3—Columbus Detective Chief Glenn Hoffman planned to talk today with Huntington, W. Va., authorities about last night's capture of Homer Dean, 37, number one suspect in the unsolved slaying last Dec. 10 of Realtor Elmo C. Rice.

Two carloads of heavily-armed officers from Lawrence County, O., and Ashland County, Ky., arrested Dean last night as he pumped up a tire on U. S. Route 52 near Ironton.

Dean, a former Columbus bartender, escaped from the Huntington state hospital Feb. 6. He had been committed there two days earlier at the request of his family. He is under indictment for robbery and forgery in Cabell, Kan., and Lincoln Counties in West Virginia.

Rice's body, pierced by two bullets, was found on an Olen-tangy river bridge two miles northwest of Worthington the night of Dec. 10, less than two hours after he left home to show a new car to a man who telephoned that he was a prospective buyer.

The auto was found a few hours later a short distance from the Columbus police headquarters.

Ashland police said Dean was alone when captured last night and apparently headed for Ironton.

Probe Of Socks Reveals Cache

PITTSBURGH, May 3—When his wife complained that Chester Lewandowski, arrested on a disorderly conduct charge, never gave her any money, the magistrate ordered him to hand over what he had on his person.

"I haven't any. I'm broke," Lewandowski replied.

"Take his shoes off, that's where he hides it," his wife countered.

Police found 22 quarters and three half dollars in Lewandowski's socks.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

Possibility of an early restoration of the monarchy in Spain has been clouded by the new arrest of Lt. Gen. Alfredo Duany Kindelan, official representative of the pretender Don Juan.

This redoubtable Cuban-born monarchist was sentenced to two months detention in Guadalupe near Irun in Northern Spain.

His offense was criticizing Generalissimo Franco and his regime in a "private" speech to a group of monarchist followers.

The fresh arrest indicated two things. First, the "private" meeting was not nearly as secret as Kindelan fondly imagined.

Second, Franco may be receding from his friendly attitude toward the monarchists now that he has been excluded from the Marshall Plan.

A FEW WEEKS ago, when Spanish Marshall Plan participation seemed highly probable, Franco made much of his so-called regency council and much was said about his apparent readiness to abandon at least some portion of his totalitarian rule.

Don Juan, of course, always has insisted that he never will share the Esorial throne with another man.

But some sort of compromise did seem possible, with Franco receding from the constant spotlight, confining himself to military matters and delivering speeches on the indestructibility of Spain as a bulwark of Catholic conservatism.

Thus by arresting Kindelan Franco seems to be risking a break with Don Juan's followers although it is a generally accepted tenet in Spain that any criticism of the present regime is tantamount to treason.

Arrests are nothing new to Kindelan. He has had a spectacular career since he came to Spain from Cuba many years ago. He was Spain's first military air pilot.

HE PLAYED a major part in building up the country's armed strength and a great role in its political affairs.

Two years ago he was packed off to the Canary Islands for several months for speaking out of turn and when he came back was placed under "house arrest" for a period.

Kindelan has a devout, almost fanatical loyalty to Don Juan and his pretensions. He has been given another two months to reflect in leisure as to whether this should exceed his complete subservience to Francisco Franco.

2,000 Bonus Checks Out Daily, Claim

610,000 Forms Already Received

COLUMBUS, May 3—Bonus checks to World War II Ohio veterans are now being mailed from the World War II Compensation Fund headquarters at an early rate of approximately 2,000 per day.

More than 610,000 applications are estimated to have been received to date, and all 224,296 applicants who submitted claims in the first three days have now had their original documents returned along with an acknowledgment form.

This was announced here today by Courtney E. Kirby, assistant director of the World War II Compensation Fund.

Kirby stated the bonus check mailing rate is expected to reach nearly 5,000 per day before too long.

"Our check-writing goal is between 5,000 and 7,500 per day," he said.

KIRBY EXPLAINED that all applicants whose claims were received at the bonus headquarters during the first three days (March 2nd, 3rd and 4th) have now been processed through the acknowledgment stage. This means more than 224,296 veterans have now had their original discharge documents returned to them through the mail.

Kirby said that original documents are being returned at an average rate of more than 10,000 per working day.

Any applicant may be able to estimate roughly when his original documents and acknowledgment form should reach him, if he knows the date he mailed his application, and applies the mailing date and the 10,000 per day acknowledgment rate to the figures listed below showing the quantity of applications received:

1st week (March 2-8) . . . 315,294
2nd week (Mar. 9-15) . . . 115,583
3rd week (Mar. 16-22) . . . 56,420
4th week (Mar. 23-29) . . . 37,730
5th week (Mar. 30-Apr. 5) . . . 26,266
6th week (Apr. 6-12) . . . 18,340
7th week (Apr. 13-19) . . . 17,641
8th week (Apr. 20-27) . . . 12,233

Wooster Youth In Family Trend

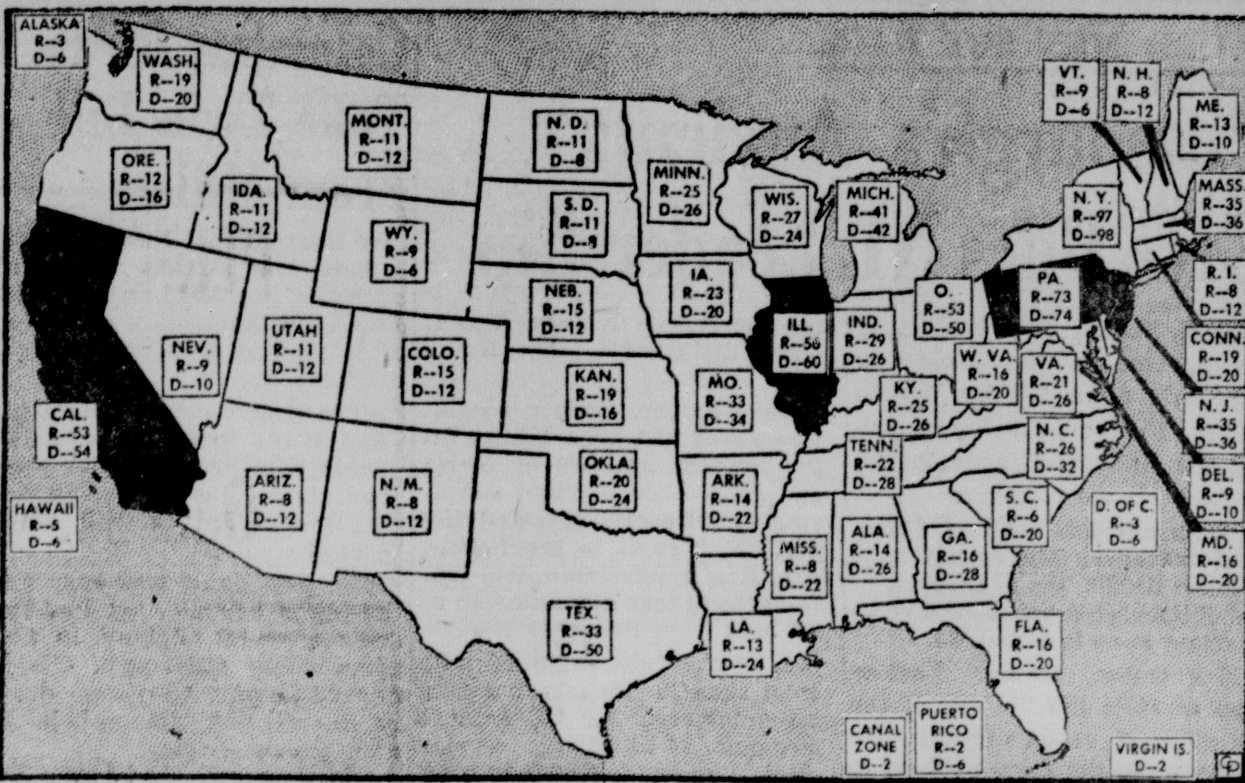

CANTON, May 3—George Funk of Wooster high school followed family tradition by winning one of five national awards in Canton last night in the final rounds of the 14th annual national forensic league tournament.

The tournament, which attracted 92 of the nation's top high school speakers, included champions from 20 states.

The 18-year-old senior, whose two brothers had won state and district honors in previous years, collected a trophy for his high school and a plaque and gold medal for himself in the extemporaneous division.

In the four other events, Wisconsin and California each topped two national championships.

The U. S. Marine Corps has loaned a mobile hospital to each of the 11 naval districts within the United States for use in disaster relief work.

Local National Guard Company Plans Anniversary Celebration

Circleville's National Guard unit, Co. I, 166th Infantry, Tuesday will celebrate its first postwar anniversary with open house at the armory.

Lt. Charles Scott of the company said Monday that interest in the National Guard is rapidly increasing and that its enlistment list is growing.

Officials said they believed many teen-age youths are giving "considerable attention to the idea of joining the National Guard since, in all probability, they will escape call in the coming draft."

Tuesday's open house here will include display of all enlisted personnel, rifles, small automatic arms and small mortars used by Co. I.

A FREE FEED for company members and prospective enlistees will be handed out at 9 p. m.

The company plans summer rifle matches, camping problems and tactical maneuvers.

More Steel Price Cuts Predicted By Trade Paper

CLEVELAND, May 3—Magazine Steel predicted today a prompt followup by the larger independent steel producers of the United States Steel lead in reducing prices on steel products.

The national metalworking industry trade publication said that a dual set of prices may result from independent action of the smaller steelmakers, with respect to the amount of reductions and the specific products.

Steel stated independent likely will price their products on a basis competitive with U. S. Steel, but there may be some exceptions.

"At the same time," Steel added, "isolated advances are expected right along in line with advancing costs. Rejection of steel labor's demand for wage increases definitely stilled talk of a general price markup soon, though it has not written off such possibility months from now since the current wage-price action is largely an experiment."

Steel pointed out, however, that to some extent lower prices on steel effected over the next week or so will be offset by freight rate increases scheduled to become effective tomorrow.

Tavern Holdup Nets Trio $493

CLEVELAND, May 3—Three armed gunmen held up a suburban Moreland Hills village tavern early today and escaped with $493 in cash.

The robbers herded three customers into a corner and forced the owner of the bar to turn over the money. They escaped in a two-tone late model sedan. The victims said the car bore no license plate.

The men were reported armed with a .45-caliber automatic and another gun of unknown make.

The secretary of the Navy rates a 19-gun salute upon arrival and departure at naval activities.

Springfield Nabs Another Meet

NEWARK, May 3—Springfield high school continued to dominate the Buckeye track scene today after its third straight major relays victory.

The Wildcats added the Newark title Saturday to previous victories at Delaware and Mansfield. Springfield had 69-1/2 points to 34-1-6 for Newark, the runnerup.

Five meet records were tied or broken. Lancaster's Gene Cole was the individual star with two firsts in the dashes and second in the 440.

Maritime Boss Denies He Will Leave Post

WASHINGTON, May 3—Vice Admiral William W. Smith, Maritime Commission chairman, today denied reports that he would resign his post under White House pressure.

Reports of Smith's impending resignation or demotion were current in Washington over the weekend. Administration displeasure over lack of "cooperation" from the commission was given as a reason for the expectation.

The admiral told a reporter that the President had given him a "vote of confidence" and "reaffirmed" his status as commission chairman.
He said:
"I had a talk with President Truman Thursday at my request and the President informed me that I will remain as chairman. The President never asked me to resign, and I don't think he ever intended to."

2,000 Bonus Checks Out Daily, Claim

610,000 Forms Already Received

COLUMBUS, May 3—Bonus checks to World War II Ohio veterans are now being mailed from the World War II Compensation Fund headquarters at an early rate of approximately 2,000 per day.

More than 610,000 applications are estimated to have been received to date, and all 224,296 applicants who submitted claims in the first three days have now had their original documents returned along with an acknowledgment form.

This was announced here today by Courtney E. Kirby, assistant director of the World War II Compensation Fund.

Kirby stated the bonus check mailing rate is expected to reach nearly 5,000 per day before too long.

"Our check-writing goal is between 5,000 and 7,500 per day," he said.

KIRBY EXPLAINED that all applicants whose claims were received at the bonus headquarters during the first three days (March 2nd, 3rd and 4th) have now been processed through the acknowledgment stage. This means more than 224,296 veterans have now had their original discharge documents returned to them through the mail.

Kirby said that original documents are being returned at an average rate of more than 10,000 per working day.

Any applicant may be able to estimate roughly when his original documents and acknowledgment form should reach him, if he knows the date he mailed his application, and applies the mailing date and the 10,000 per day acknowledgment rate to the figures listed below showing the quantity of applications received:

1st week (March 2-8) . . .	315,284
2nd week (Mar. 9-15) . . .	115,563
3rd week (Mar. 16-22) . . .	56,420
4th week (Mar. 23-29) . . .	37,730
5th week (Mar. 30-Apr. 5) . . .	28,266
6th week (Apr. 6-12) . . .	18,340
7th week (Apr. 13-19) . . .	17,641
8th week (Apr. 20-27) . . .	12,233

Wooster Youth In Family Trend

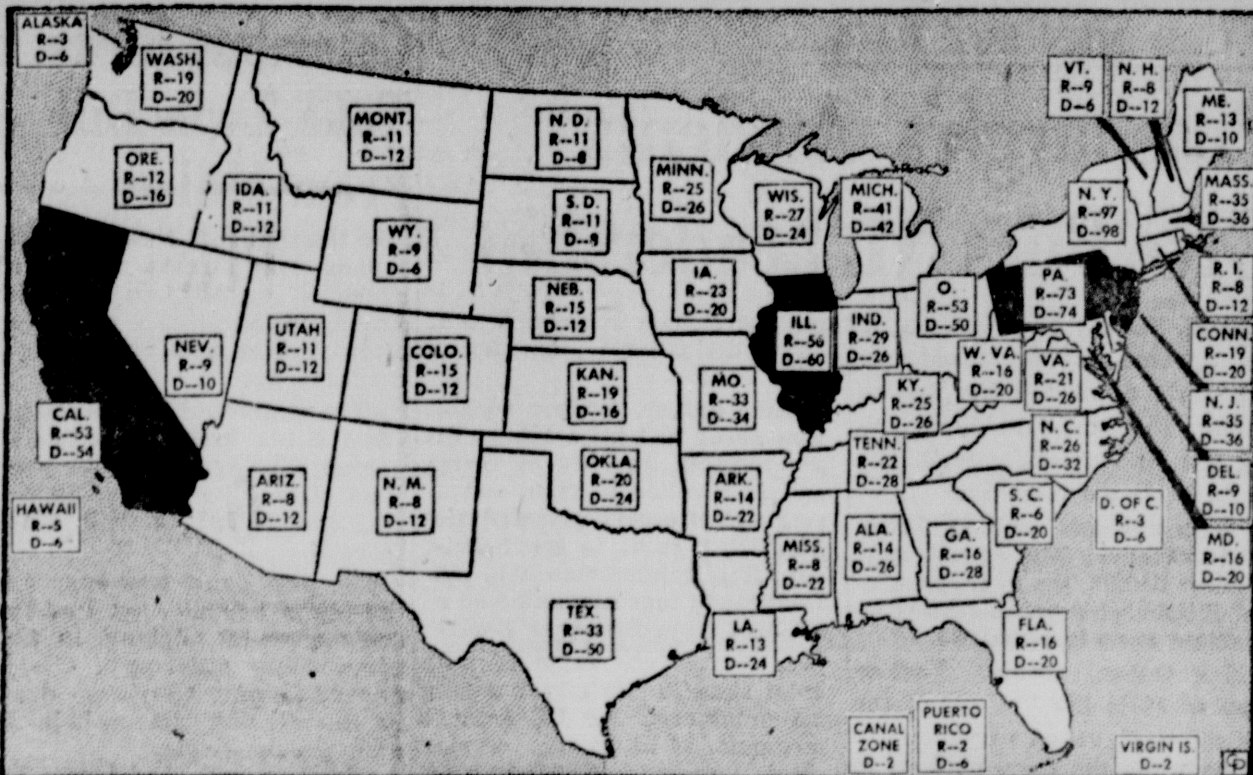

CANTON, May 3—George Funk of Wooster high school followed family tradition by winning one of five national awards in Canton last night in the final rounds of the 14th annual national forensic league tournament.

The tournament, which attracted 92 of the nation's top high school speakers, included champions from 20 states.

The 18-year-old senior, whose two brothers had won state and district honors in previous years, collected a trophy for his high school and a plaque and gold medal for himself in the extemporaneous division.

In the four other events, Wisconsin and California each copped two national championships.

The U. S. Marine Corps has loaned a mobile hospital to each of the 11 naval districts within the United States for use in disaster relief work.

Illinois' Green

California's Warren

Pennsylvania's Duff

New Jersey's Driscoll

FOUR GOVERNORS may make the final decision on the Republican presidential nominee. They are Dwight H. Green of Illinois, Earl Warren of California, James H. Duff of Pennsylvania and Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, whose delegations will go to Philadelphia comparatively free to cast a total of 217 votes as they see fit. It takes 548 to nominate. Number of Republican and Democratic convention delegates from each state is shown. Totals—1,094 GOP, 1,234 Democrats. (International)

Local National Guard Company Plans Anniversary Celebration

Circleville's National Guard unit, Co. I, 166th Infantry, Tuesday will celebrate its first postwar anniversary with open house at the armory.

Lt. Charles Scott of the company said Monday that interest in the National Guard is rapidly increasing and that its enlistment list is growing.

Officials said they believed many teen-age youths are giving "considerable attention to the idea of joining the National Guard since, in all probability, they will escape call in the coming draft."

Tuesday's open house here will include display of all enlisted personnel, rifles, small automatic arms and small mortars used by Co. I.

A FREE FEED for company members and prospective enlistees will be handed out at 9 p. m.

The company plans Summer rifle matches, camping problems and tactical maneuvers.

More Steel Price Cuts Predicted By Trade Paper

CLEVELAND, May 3—Magazine Steel predicted today a prompt followup by the larger independent steel producers of the United States Steel lead in reducing prices on steel products.

The national metalworking industry trade publication said that a dual set of prices may result from independent action of the smaller steelmakers, with respect to the amount of reductions and the specific products.

Steel stated independent likely will price their products on a basis competitive with U. S. Steel, but there may be some exceptions.

"At the same time," Steel added, "isolated advances are expected right along in line with advancing costs. Rejection of steel labor's demand for wage increases definitely stilled talk of a general price markup soon, though it has not written off such possibility months from now since the current wage-price action is largely an experiment."

Steel pointed out, however, that to some extent lower prices on steel effected over the next week or so will be offset by freight rate increases scheduled to become effective tomorrow.

Tavern Holdup Nets Trio $493

CLEVELAND, May 3—Three armed gunmen held up a suburban Moreland Hills village tavern early today and escaped with $493 in cash.

The robbers herded three customers into a corner and forced the owner of the bar to turn over the money. They escaped in a two-tone late model sedan. The victims said the car bore no license plate.

The men were reported armed with a .45-caliber automatic and another gun of unknown make.

The secretary of the Navy rates a 19-gun salute upon arrival and departure at naval activities.

Springfield Nabs Another Meet

NEWARK, May 3—Springfield high school continued to dominate the Buckeye track scene today after its third straight major relays victory.

The Wildcats added the Newark title Saturday to previous victories at Delaware and Mansfield. Springfield had 69-1/2 points to 34-1-6 for Newark, the runnerup.

Five meet records were broken. Lancaster's Gene Cole was the individual star with two firsts in the dashes and second in the 440.

Maritime Boss Denies He Will Leave Post

WASHINGTON, May 3—Vice Admiral William W. Smith, Maritime Commission chairman, today denied reports that he would resign his post under White House pressure.

Reports of Smith's impending resignation or demotion were current in Washington over the weekend. Administration displeasure over lack of "cooperation" from the commission was given as a reason for the expectation.

ed action. Smith, a Navy veteran, is a Republican.

The admiral told a reporter that the President had given him a "vote of confidence" and "reaffirmed" his status as commission chairman. He said:

"I had a talk with President Truman Thursday at my request and the President informed me that I will remain as chairman. The President never asked me to resign, and I don't think he ever intended to."

It had been reported that Maritime Commissioner Raymond S. McKeogh, a Democrat, would succeed Smith as chairman. The rumors had the admiral staying on as a commissioner.

delightful characters of L. Frank Baum's immortal story, "The Wizard of Oz," will march in review when Mutual's "Adventure Parade" presents a dramatized version of the childhood classic starting Monday through Friday, at 5 p. m.

Lilli Palmer will make her debut on the Lux Radio Theatre when she co-stars with Ronald Reagan in "Cloak and Dagger," an exciting drama of O.S.S. activities, on Monday at 9:00 p. m. over CBS.

William Keighley is producer of the show and Lou Silver, musical director, is in charge of arranging and conducting incidental music.

"Cloak and Dagger" is the story of an American scientist and college professor, Dr. Alvah Jesper, played by Ronald Reagan, who is commissioned by the intelligence department to go into Nazi-occupied Europe and obtain information on the progress Germany had made toward producing an atom bomb. Dr. Jesper's mission is to locate and consult with anti-Nazi scientists who have worked on the German project.

When a sister unwillingly assumes the evil personality of her twin, there's bound to be trouble, according to Mutual's "Mysterious Traveler," who explains why during his Tuesday story drama at 8 p. m.

One sister marries and her twin tries to win the husband's love.

The story is titled—"They Who Sleep."

A tough-talking, fast-moving carnival barker, whose bite is much worse than his bark, wanders down New Orleans' Dream Street to find himself in a dead-end alley where crime and intrigue are the only exits in "Murder on My Mind," on "Inner Sanctum," Monday at 8 p. m., over CBS.

Actor Larry Haines will be cast as Lippy Latimer

delightful characters of L. Frank Baum's immortal story, "The Wizard of Oz," will march in review when Mutual's "Adventure Parade" presents a dramatized version of the childhood classic starting Monday through Friday, at 5 p. m.

Lilli Palmer will make her debut on the Lux Radio Theatre when she co-stars with Ronald Reagan in "Cloak and Dagger," an exciting drama of O.S.S. activities, on Monday at 9:00 p. m. over CBS.

William Keighley is producer of the show and Lou Silvers, musical director, is in charge of arranging and conducting incidental music.

"Cloak and Dagger" is the story of an American scientist and college professor, Dr. Alvah Jesper, played by Ronald Reagan, who is commissioned by the intelligence department to go into Nazi-occupied Europe and obtain information on the progress Germany had made toward producing an atom bomb. Dr. Jesper's mission is to locate and consult with anti-Nazi scientists who have worked on the German project.

When a sister unwillingly assumes the evil personality of her twin, there's bound to be trouble, according to Mutual's "Mysterious Traveler," who explains why during his Tuesday story drama at 8 p. m.

One sister marries and her twin tries to win the husband's love.

The story is titled—"They Who Sleep."

A tough-talking, fast-moving carnival barker, whose bite is much worse than his bark, wanders down New Orleans' Dream Street to find himself in a dead-end alley where crime and intrigue are the only exits in "Murder on My Mind," on "Inner Sanctum," Monday at 8 p. m. over CBS.

Actor Larry Haines will be cast as Lippy Latimer

Corn Farmers Urged To Use Contour Planting This Year

As the 1948 corn planting season gets under way this week throughout Pickaway County, area farmers were urged to use contour farming as a means of saving thousands of tons of irreplaceable top soil which otherwise may be lost to erosion.

J. A. Muster, county soil conservationist said Monday most of the potential soil loss can be prevented simply by practicing contour farming.

He said this requires performing field operations on the level and against the slope of the land instead of up and down the drains for the water to carry off the top soil.

Every cultivator ridge, every wheel track and every plant offers effective resistance to the movement of runoff water which carries soil with it when contouring, Muster declared.

ON THE OTHER hand, when farming with the slope, such obstacles become promoters of both soil erosion and water losses, he said.

In one carefully measured experiment lasting four years, where no preventative practice was used, the annual soil loss was 16.2 tons per acre and water loss in runoff was eight percent, the conservationist pointed out.

By comparison, the part of this land that was contour farmed it lost only 1.8 tons of soil per acre and only 4.8 percent of water in runoff.

This was a saving of eight times as much soil and nearly half the water, Muster stated.

Practically, contour farming is a time and money-saver for the farmer, the soil expert disclosed. He said beside effectiveness, contour farming costs nothing extra, is easier on equipment, and requires about one-third less fuel in mechanical operations.

OBJECTIONS to the plan are solved, Muster stated, simply by running lines closely enough to the contour on the land so as to retard erosion and prevent difficulty in cultivating and mechanically picking the corn.

Contour farming also is applicable and beneficial to crops other than corn. It prevents the loss of much expensive fertilizer that has been purchased and which is badly needed for the production of valuable crops, Muster declared.

VFW Chief Quits Gusik Committee

CLEVELAND, May 3—Hudson Hyatt, national judge advocate of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, resigned yesterday from the Justice-for-Tom Gusik Committee.

The group is a civic legal group aiding Thomas A. Gusik in his fight to gain freedom from a 16-year sentence for the killing of two Italian black market thieves.

Hyatt announced his resignation in a letter to Morris Morgestern, committee chairman.

He emphasized he did not wish his resignation "to be construed as a reflection upon the merits of the case of young Gusik." He charged in his letter that some members of the committee "linked it to the long-raging controversy between the Joint Veterans Council and the Greater Cleveland Veterans Council."

Wing Gas Tank Order Placed

COLUMBUS, May 3—The Curtis-Wright Corp. announced today that it would produce aluminum wing-tip gas tanks for the Air Force's P-80 jet fighter.

Work on the half million dollar contract will begin immediately. The project will take 10 months to complete.

The Air Force gave the go-ahead for production after the first tanks were flight tested at Wright Field Friday.

Purse-Snatching Linked To Case

CLEVELAND, May 3—East Cleveland police were to question Mrs. Grace Ensign, 55, of Cleveland today in an effort to link a purse snatcher who attacked her Saturday night to the brutal murder of Ilda M. Koogle.

Mrs. Ensign suffered head and face injuries when she was clubbed while resisting her assailant. The description of the man tallied closely with that of a prowler seen near the Koogle residence shortly before the 60-year-old woman's death a week ago Saturday.

Mrs. Koogle died of multiple fractures of the skull.

City Chief Dies

WARREN, May 3—Funeral services will be held in nearby Hubbard tomorrow for John Duer Doughten, 54, city solicitor and well-known attorney, who died yesterday. He suffered a heart attack while shooting golf at the Youngstown Country Club.

Right Wing Wins

CLEVELAND, May 3—The rightwing element of the CIO-United Electrical Workers union scored another victory here yesterday when Westinghouse employees voted overwhelmingly to oust their financial secretary for alleged leftwing leanings. The officer, Paul Albert, refused to deny he was a Communist.
